HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, November 13, 1903.

The House met at 12 o'clock m.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. HENRY N. COUDEN, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE.

Mr. LIVERNASH. I rise, Mr. Speaker, to a question of privilege affecting the rights of the whole House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from California will state his question of privilege.

Mr. LIVERNASH. Mr. Speaker, I have reduced to writing the concluding question of my statement of privilege and send it to the Clerk's desk, asking now that on the termination of my parol statement it be read for the further information of the House.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman send the conclusion to the Clerk's desk now, that it may be reported?

Mr. LIVERNASH. Mr. Speaker, indications are that in the Panama-Colombia matter the President is invading—

The SPEAKER. One moment. The Chair does not understand the gentleman. Does the gentleman want his paper read now or at the close of his remarks?

Mr. LIVERNASH. At the conclusion of my spoken statement. Indications are that in the Panama-Colombia matter the President is invading a constitutional prerogative of the Congress; and it seems of high importance to the dignity and authority of this House that doubt be dispelled forthwith.

The Congress alone is empowered to declare war; yet it appears by the only information thus far here available that the President has made, and continues to make, the attitude of the United States toward the Republic of Colombia one of such belligerency that to attempt to put down a revolution in Panama so recent that the nations have scarcely become conscious of its existence, and that Colombia has not had a reasonable time wherein to throw her power against it, the Republic must deal with our country as a war ally of the revolutionists, whatever may be her willingness to respect her treaty obligations with the United States while struggling to retain sovereignty over Panama.

If our present relations with Colombia are as they seem, respect of the Members of this body for their oaths to support the Constitution requires that this House stand for such an exercise of power as shall tend to restore just equilibrium of the coordinate branches of the Government. If, however, appearances are misleading, and—

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that this is not a question of privilege. The gentleman from California has proceeded far enough to show that he has no question of privilege.

The SPEAKER. It is impossible for the Chair to state at this time whether the matter the gentleman is referring to presents a question of privilege or not. The Chair will hear the gentleman further.

Mr. PAYNE. I think, Mr. Speaker, the better practice is for the gentleman to state his motion or question of privilege first.

The SPEAKER. Yes; and if the gentleman from New York insists, the gentleman from California must state his question of privilege first.

Mr. PAYNE. I do insist, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman from California that the resolution which the gentleman has sent to the Clerk's desk the Chair has not yet read; but the Chair suggests that the gentleman first state the question that he is about to present, and that unless the gentleman does so, the Chair will hold that the point made by the gentleman from New York is well taken.

Mr. LIVERNASH. Then, with the indulgence of the Speaker, I shall endeavor to state the question as concisely as may be.

Four days having elapsed since the President was requested to transmit to this body "all correspondence and other official documents relating to the recent revolution on the Isthmus of Panama," and—

The SPEAKER. One moment.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, that is no question of privilege.

The SPEAKER. Clearly what the gentleman states is not a question of privilege. The Chair is inclined, where a question of privilege is made in good faith by any Member, to allow latitude for the presentation of such question in good faith; but when the point of order is made, there is nothing left for the Chair but to observe the rule, and the Chair again suggests to the gentleman whether it would not be well for him to let the resolution which he says he proposes to offer, but which the Chair has not yet been able to read, be read for the information of the House. The gentleman from New York insists that the question of privilege must be stated, and that point is well taken under the rule. The Chair so holds. What the Chair suggests to the gentleman in regard to having his resolution read is a mere suggestion, which the gentleman can adopt or not, as he chooses.

Mr. LIVERNASH. Mr. Speaker, I understood the ruling of the Chair yesterday to be that a Member might himself determine the order of his statement of his question of privilege. Was I right in that conclusion?

The SPEAKER. That was a question of personal privilege, and the Chair did not intend to rule that even as to matters of personal privilege that position would be necessarily adhered to.

Mr. LIVERNASH. May I inquire, Mr. Speaker, whether it is not true that broader liberty is given on questions of privilege affecting the rights of the whole House than on questions of strictly personal privilege?

The SPEAKER. Well, the Chair will decide that question when it is presented.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. One moment, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. GAINES] will suspend. The gentleman from California [Mr. LIVERNASH] seems quite able to take care of himself. The Chair is inclined to the opinion that the question which the gentleman from California is seeking to present, and upon which the gentleman from New York makes a point of order, is not a question of privilege. That is the question of order with which the Chair is undertaking to deal. So, then—

Mr. LIVERNASH. Mr. Speaker, the Commonwealth of California, through me as one of her Representatives, is trying to bring to the notice of the other States of the sisterhood what she conceives to be an infringement of the constitutional rights of the House, and I earnestly seek to state a question of privilege which will serve this purpose.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read a passage from the Manual bearing upon this question.

The Clerk read as follows:

In presenting a question of personal privilege a Member is not required in the first instance to make a motion or offer a resolution; but such is not the rule in presenting a case involving the privileges of the House.

Mr. LIVERNASH. Then, Mr. Speaker, conforming to the suggestion of the Chair, I state my question in these words—

The SPEAKER. If the gentleman will offer his resolution in writing under the rules, he will then conform to the rules; and then, for the first time, the Chair can make a ruling as to whether the gentleman is in order. The point of order being made, the rule is perfectly plain.

Mr. LIVERNASH. The rule may be perfectly plain, but, Mr. Speaker, the resolution proper that I should wish to have this House ultimately consider would be a resolution which could not be offered until my question of privilege had been stated and passed upon; and I have not yet been permitted to state my question of privilege.

The SPEAKER. If the gentleman is so unfortunate as not to be able to embody in a resolution in writing, for the information of the House, his question of privilege, he is unable to conform to the rules of the House, as the Chair understands the matter.

Mr. MAHON and others. Regular order!

CUBAN RECIPROCITY.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I am directed by the Committee on Ways and Means to report back without amendment the bill (H. R. 1921) to carry into effect a convention between the United States and the Republic of Cuba, signed on the 11th day of December, 1902. Mr. Speaker, I desire to give notice that I shall call up this bill on Monday next for the consideration of the House.

The bill, with the accompanying report, was referred to the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. PAYNE. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS].

Mr. WILLIAMS of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, there has been an arrangement entered into between the majority and minority members of the committee, upon which I am going to base a request for unanimous consent. Would it be better to make the request now or wait until Monday morning?

Mr. PAYNE. I suggest to the gentleman that he wait until Monday morning.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Mississippi. Very well.

Mr. PAYNE. If the gentleman's request should not be granted, the matter can be incorporated in the rule. There is no doubt about our agreement that we are to consider the bill until Thursday, and take a vote at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Mississippi. It is furthermore understood that minority members may have until Monday evening to file their views.

Mr. PAYNE. Of course that would be for the House to grant; but I have no objection to it.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Mississippi. I ask unanimous consent that that right be granted now.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Mississippi asks unanimous consent that the minority members of the Ways and Means Committee have until Monday next to present their views.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Mississippi. Until the adjournment of the House on Monday.

The SPEAKER. Until the adjournment of the House on Monday. Is there objection?

There was no objection.
